Dear Friends and Partners,

“As the stars shone brightly and the world lay in expectant silence, a promise fulfilled came tenderly in the form of a newborn King.”

In the stillness of a Bethlehem night, our greatest hope was swaddled in modest cloths, His first breaths a symphony to the souls in need of salvation. This profound mystery, that God would cloak His divinity in humanity, is the cornerstone of our joy as we celebrate Christmas.

This season isn't solely about the merriment that fills the air or the lights that twinkle in harmony with our highest hopes. It is the embodiment of God's love, a testament to a promise kept. It's a time when we reflect on how the birth of a single Child in a humble manger has intricately woven threads of compassion through the tapestry of human history.

We see His influence in the compassion of those who extend a hand to those in need, in the kindness of strangers, and in the courage of those who strive for justice. From the halls of hospitals to the outstretched hands of charities across the globe—each act of love is but a ripple from that first wave of hope that washed over the earth with Jesus' arrival.

He was more than just a child; He was the embodiment of God's plan for humanity—a blueprint of redemption, a living promise of eternal companionship. Through His life, death, and resurrection, He offered not just a temporary reprieve but an eternal connection, an unbreakable bond with our Creator.

As we gather with loved ones wrapped in bows and love, let us encompassed all of ones, sharing stories by the fire's warm glow, exchanging gifts remember the ultimate gift—a life given for us, a love so vast it humanity.

This Christmas, let us commit to not only cherish but to emulate that love. Let us be bearers of hope, purveyors of peace, and ambassadors of the joy that first found its expression in a stable long ago.

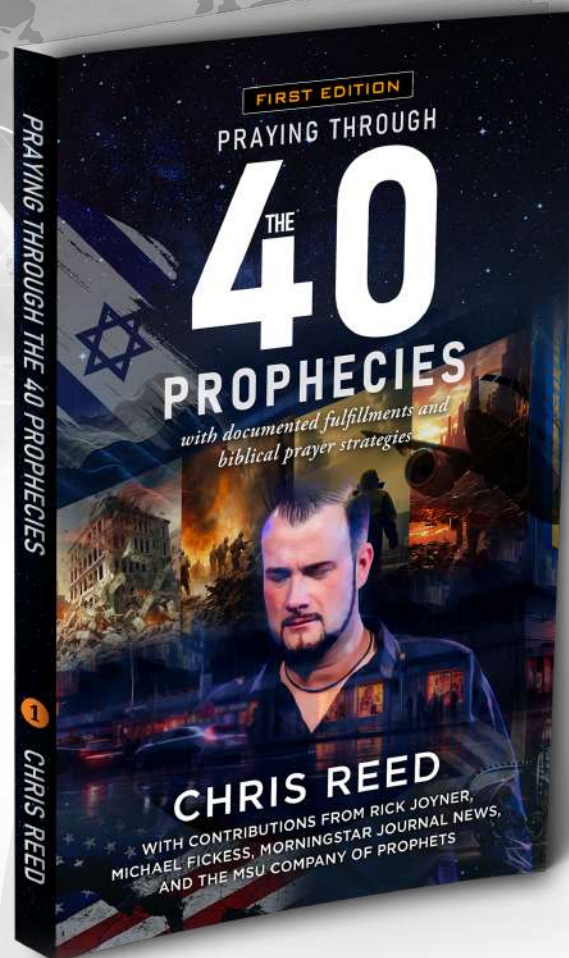

Your partnership in this journey allows the message of that holy night to echo through the ages. Together, we continue to spread the good news, the tidings of comfort, joy, and salvation to all corners of the earth.

With heartfelt gratitude for your unwavering support and prayers, we wish you a Christmas season that resonates with the fullness of joy that came to us on that blessed night.

A very Merry Christmas to you and yours,

Cheri Reed
